ress

beauty of retro lines

We approached this chair as a modern looking couch bringing features of traditional 60's design idea of lines and angles shaped with modern material. We stepped in to making an armchair, and ended up with a family of sofas so customers could choose and design their own interiors. The sewing details are the most important part of the design by characterizing the product, making it look gorgeous.

The geometry and softness are well mixed in the design process. The inner metal construction comes out of the product and becomes the feet for its' base. This one piece metal structure strengthens the piece yet gives it a lightweight perception.

We figured if one person sits on the upholstered version, while an un-upholstered version is placed next to it, the un-upholstered can be conveniently used as a table. C- Anemome can be finished in a number of colors, with complimentary contract fabrics and leathers for the seat.
